The steamship Martha Washington of the Austro-American Line landed nearly 2,000 passengers at her dock in South Brooklyn to-day after tumultuous voyage from Trieste and Mediterranean ports. All the passengers were surprised to hear that a state of general warfare prevails in Europe, although rumors were flying about the ship for several days. There were 150 first-class, 600 second-class and 1,050 steerage passengers on the Martha Washington. The second-class accommodations were overcrowded and after the boat left Trieste a number of second-class passengers were forced into the steerage. Among them were 60
